The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 16, 20-23, 31 and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rorstad et al (EP 0 466 037) in combination with Lehmann et al (U.S. Patent No. 6,143,883).

Rorstad et al disclose administration of glucans or a combination of glucans with vitamins or antimicrobial agents and such conventional carriers as water to aquatic animals by aqueous exposure (page 7).

Lehmann et al disclose that water soluble glucans are effective in enhancing immune system and therefore are to be expected to be effective in accelerating wound healing (column 2, lines 29-35). Lehman et al further disclose that suitable species to be treated include fish (column 4, line 62).

Therefore, a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the present invention was made would have been motivated to administer water soluble glucans to aquatic animals for the purpose wound healing because the results obtained by such an administration would have been expected..

Applicant's arguments filed September 10, 2009 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant contends that the glucans disclosed by Rorstad et al are not water soluble and therefore are different from water soluble glucans encompassed by the present claims. Applicant also contends that Lehman et al is really concerned with mammals and that the disclosure of fish is a bizarre mention. These arguments have not been found persuasive. The prior art teaching is not limited to preferred embodiments. Based on the disclosure by Lehman et al of fish, a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the claimed invention would have been motivated to try administering water-soluble to glucans, especially in view of the teaching by Rorstad et al that administration of glucans to fish was known at the time of the claimed invention. In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., a sufficient dose) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
